Egatha's Patient

The patient lying in bed is paralyzed from the waist down because of an almost fatal car accident. He is unable to support himself, so his elderly mother is left to not only care for his well-being but also work to cover his medication expenses. She is so thankful that Egatha is able to help cover some of her son's medication costs, alleviating what can be an extraordinary burden.

This gentleman pictured to your right is a patient living with uncontrolled diabetes. For us in the West, it is atypical to see someone incapable of controlling his/her diabetes, especially to the point of losing limbs. However, this is a harsh reality for many in Lebanon; this patient is just one of many. Because he was unable to receive care early on, doctors had to amputate his toes. Nevertheless, Egatha is now able to provide his medications on a monthly basis because of your generosity.
